

December 21, 2005

Dear Friends:

This really isn't so much of an update as a sharing of my thinking as we roll into 2006 together.

In June of 2006, I will be 70 years old; and at the same time, reach the two-year mark since I was told that I have PSP. To sum up my feelings – I have been a very lucky guy – great wife, kids, grandchildren, and an exceptional group of friends. (You all make life worth fighting for!)

As I look back, I have to say that life has been good to me! As I look forward, I remain positive and optimistic about the future. During this past year, I have been more religious and it feels good ... it feels right for me! God will be done! God, for some reason, wanted me to have PSP, so it is my responsibility to make the most of it. Thanks to your support and encouragement, I intend to do just that! Don't mistake what I'm doing as bravery, it isn't – I just don't see any other alternative other than to charge forward in a typical Peebler manner (full speed ahead and damn the torpedoes). It is my hope that together we can make a difference! I believe we will!

Toni joins me in wishing you a great 2006 filled with more than your share of good health, happiness, success and love! Life is life – fight for it! Hugs for all ...

Yours sincerely,

Charles D. Peebler, Jr.

CDP/wmk

P.S. If you haven't done so already, please visit the Peebler PSP Research Foundation website at www.peeblerpspresearch.org. Let us know how you feel it can be improved!